APPENDIX A - NOTIFICATION PROCEDURES

SECTION I: INTRODUCTION

PREAMBLE
1. Students are valued members of our University community. The death of a student may have some or significant impact on individuals close to the student or individuals who have recently experienced a death.

2. The purpose of this Protocol is to facilitate a co-ordinated University response to the death of a student.

3. The Office of Student Affairs is the central point of contact and coordination of activities related to the death of a student.

4. A response to the death of a student will always occur regardless of whether the death occurred on or off campus, the nature of the death, or the time of year. The nature of the tragedy will determine the level of communication and response required.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES
5. These Guiding Principles represent our commitment to respond to the death of a student with:

   a) Compassion: a response must consider the impact on the University community (fellow students, faculty, staff), and the family.

   b) Respect and Privacy: a response must respect the wishes of the student’s family in regards to how the death is communicated, how much information is released around the nature of death, and who communicates with the family and how.

   c) Safety: the safety of those affected by the death must be considered, and a Postvention response strategy put in place in order to respond to the unique considerations involved in a death caused by suicide.

   d) Timeliness: a response to the death must occur in a timely manner. The death may be sudden necessitating an emergency response, or the University may learn of the death after some time. It is important to respond to the death to the University community, as well as to the student’s family as soon as possible.

SCOPE
6. This Protocol applies to all McMaster University students (e.g. undergraduate, graduate, part-time, McMaster English Language Development (MELD) diploma students, Undergraduate MD students, international and exchange students).

MEMORIALS AND COMMEMORATIONS
7. Every member of the University community is valued and important. Any loss of life of any member of the community is tragic and will have an impact on those around us.
